Some of the crazy contraptions that players achieve with redstone leave my jaw on the floor and my self-esteem in tatters. After all, I can barely swing a pickaxe, while players in Minecraft have used redstone to build working calculators, working computers, Rube Goldberg machines and houses littered with traps that even the kid from Home Alone would call 'a bit much'.

This build optimizes the cleric for its main purpose, that of a healer. The 5th edition rules have lessened the need for a healer after fights with the introduction of the short and long rest periods. However, during fights, the Cleric's ability to heal wounded party members is still often the difference between victory and defeat.

Helping in combat. Since the familiar can take actions during combat (except to attack), the wizard can order it to use the Help action on an adjacent enemy. The Help action lets the familiar give an ally advantage on their next attack roll against an enemy creature. This option is very useful when you have any ally that makes attack rolls.
